

What do you see?

Location: Ethiopia

Elephant Grass is grown along these stone bunds It strengthens the defence of the structure against run-off.

These plants are of agro-economic value and they bring economic returns. Elephant grass is a valuable source of fodder.

Stone bunds tend to get infested by rodents and snakes. To prevent that, Vetiver grass can be alternatively used. Its sharp leaves keep uninvited animals away.

Photo: MetaMeta

11 - Elephant grass - Stone bunds